New ClubsNSW Board Director looking forward to guiding future of club industry

Article by Ben Rossleigh, ClubsNSW Media Officer.

"Sallianne Faulkner can still remember the first interaction with her local club. She'd just turned 8 and like most young people her age wanted to hit the town with friends. And the local RSL Club was the obvious choice.

"The RSL Club was always the gathering point to get together and have a couple of drinks," she says, "so naturally this was the venue I chose when it came to heading out on a Friday or Saturday night. Clubs have always been the gathering point in the community, providing a safe environment for people to meet up and enjoy themselves."

In the years that followed, Sallianne became heavily involved with the Ramsgate RSL Club.

"My first involvement with Ramsgate RSL was as a member, primarily from an Anzac Day point of view. I would attend the annual march and service that was staged by the club as a way of paying my respect to our local returned servicemen and women," she says.

"My children also played team sport through the youth sporting sub-clubs, all of which were supported by the registered club, and during that time I held voluntary positions at most of sub-clubs that they played for."

It was a busy time for the family with Sallianne juggling these voluntary positions alongside her trophy engraving business and running the financial side of her husband's plumbing business.

Despite many hours devoted to her small businesses, Sallianne decided to take on even further responsibility by helping to ensure Ramsgate RSL Club's long-term future, and she knew there was only one way to make sure that happened.

"I believe that if you've got something to say then you then you need to stand up and have your voice counted," she says. So she ran for a director position on the Board in 2012, was elected and knew straight away that there was much to be done.

"At my first meeting, I asked to see a copy of the Strategic Plan, and that's when I found out that there wasn't one," Sallianne says, "Planning and vision are crucial to the long-term success of any business."

Sallianne stresses that her election to the Board was not about making wholesale change, it was about ensuring the Club could continue to provide services into the future that the community had come to expect. And it was about adding her voice to the governance conversation at the Board table which she felt was vitally important at that stage of the Club's history. In 2014 she was elected she was elected President by her peers.

"I benefited from clubs growing up, my children received unbelievable support from clubs through junior sport, and as a family, we have made lifelong friends from fellow volunteers in the club so I know just how important it is to ensure the long-term viability of clubs," she says.

During Sallianne's tenure on the Board, Ramsgate RSL Club's membership has risen significantly, including a surge in the number of families coming through its doors.

"Just recently on Mother's Day, visitation was up 150 per cent from last year, which means we're doing what we should be doing for our members. They're enjoying the facilities and for me that's really rewarding and great payback for the hours we put in. I'm also incredibly proud of our staff who continue to deliver on our plans" Sallianne says.

With Ramsgate RSL Club heading in the right direction, the time was right to turn attention to the wider industry. Sallianne became Secretary/Treasurer of the ClubsNSW Southern Metropolitan Region in 2015, representing the interests of all clubs in the St George district and Sutherland Shire. She values the opportunities to gather with her peers to discuss matters important to the club industry. Then last month she was appointed to the Board of ClubsNSW after a position became vacant through the retirement of Deputy Chairman Mike Fraser.

Upon taking her seat, Sallianne became just the second female director in the Association's 90-year history, although it's a point she doesn't dwell on.

"In a professional sense I don't see myself through the prism of being male or female, I'm simply doing a job that's there to be done," she says, and sees the role as critically important and an enormous privilege.

"It's crucial that the industry remains relevant and looks to its long-term future and viability, clubs have a fantastic history and I'm really honoured to be able to sit on the Board to help ensure a future legacy," Sallianne says. I'm really interested in corporate social responsibility. It's something that I'd like to champion in the long run, and I'd also want to ensure that clubs continue to be seen through the sphere of being critical to job creation, and in turn demonstrate what that brings to the state of NSW.

"We're one of the largest employers at a local level. We don't talk about that enough. Our clubs in rural NSW are the reason why many people get out of bed and I'd like to play a part in making sure that continues."

Great play guys. Remember players, that saying, "I play sport particularly table tennis to get fit", but the medical advice is get fit to play. With this in mind, it is recommended to do a little exercise and some stretching prior to play then start off with some warm up play.

Best of luck,
